

An aerial photograph of the Tamarind Bay Club, a waterfront condominium community. The club is situated on a narrow strip of land, bordered by Blackwater Sound to the south and a residential area to the north. The club features several multi-story buildings with red-tiled roofs, swimming pools, and a marina with numerous boats docked. The surrounding area is lush with greenery and trees. In the background, the ocean is visible under a vibrant sunset sky with streaks of pink, orange, and blue. A small boat is docked at the end of the club's pier.

Property & Layout

A single four-story residential complex holds just fifty units — a quieter, lower-density alternative to the Keys' larger resort communities. Two- and three-bedroom floor plans open onto wide private verandas or glass-enclosed balconies, most positioned west to capture bay sunsets and the Gulf breeze.

SF FLOOR PLANS

Homes typically feature open layouts with split-bedroom configurations. Portions of the property sit in favorable X flood zones, and many units include impact-rated glass for added peace of mind.

The complex's four buildings frame a private, deep-water marina channel.

Boating Setup

Assigned dockage accommodates vessels up to 34 feet, backed by an on-site boat ramp, boat and trailer storage, a fish-cleaning station, and a boat-wash area. Nearby Adams Cut gives quick channel access from Florida Bay straight out to the Atlantic.
